
Brief Bibliography for Alabama Architecture

Scholarly research on Alabama architecture is just beginning. Most of the titles listed below are, therefore, only incidentally related to historic architecture and, oftentimes, fall more into the realm of antiquarian literature. Still, in the absence of more analytical source materials for many locales, pictorial histories and works of the "old homes and families" variety can at least offer a clue as to the type of architectural resources that exist in counties and communities across the state. Listed first are works with a statewide focus, then those that are multi-county or regional in scope, and finally a county-by-county breakdown.
